Required Text:

Leon P. Baradat, Political Ideologies: Their Origins and Impact. (9th ed.)
(New Jersey: Pearson-Prentiss Hall, 2006.

Course Objectives:

POSC 110, 'Politics and Ideology', has several objectives. First, the course is designed to introduce students to the many and various ideologies that have played such important roles in western politics for centuries. In order to do this, the course will guide students through readings and discussions about the precepts and elements of ideologies. After this, we consider political ideologies themselves. Second, the course intends to foster critical thinking, analysis, and independent thought regarding the role of ideology in political life. Further course objectives include developing analytical writing; participating in discussions concerning selected topics; and increasing our understanding of the role of ideologies in nearly every facet of our 'political lives'.

B = 72 - 75	C = 60 - 63%	F = 0 - 49
A - = 80 - 84%	B- = 68 - 71%	C - = 55 - 59%

Participation:

PARTICIPATION IS CRUCIAL!! Class attendance is extremely important for all students. POSC 110 covers a broad area of Political-Ideological studies. Each class is essential for students to receive information pertaining to each week's topics. Further, students will have ample opportunities to ask questions and receive clarification regarding course content. Most important of all, class discussions will be strongly encouraged in order to facilitate learning and the interchange of ideas. The participation grade will be calculated by attendance AND participation. Simple attendance will not ensure a satisfactory participation grade.

Written Assignment:

Students will be required to submit a 2-3 page writing assignment. The assignment will consist of a proposal for a larger (imaginary) research paper. The object of the writing assignment is to give the student an opportunity to develop and sharpen his/her writing skills at a university level.

The assignment will require the student to develop an opening paragraph with a thesis statement. This introduction and thesis statement will explain and outline the topic of the paper and the method the writer wishes to employ in reaching certain conclusions. The following paragraphs will be a synopsis of the 'chapters' or sub-sections that would follow in a fuller version of the research paper.

All proper formatting, citations, and grammatical structure will be followed according to the "Chicago Style" essay format as well as the rules guiding work written in the English language. The specific topics of the writing assignment will be given by the instructor. Guidance for specific topics and issues should be requested from the instructor by each student.

Midterm and Final Exams:

The examinations for this course will be closed-book and made up of multiple-choice questions and, possibly, some short essay questions. The midterm exam will contain approximately 50 questions and the final exam will be approximately 100 questions. The questions for both exams will be taken from assigned readings, lectures, and class discussions. Questions will include definitions, concepts, abstract reasoning, and critical analysis. The examinations test each student's ability to recall various specific topics as well as relate conceptual material. The midterm will be written in class on Tuesday, Oct. 10 and Thursday, Oct. 12 (for each respective class). Midterm exams will be scheduled for the normal duration of a class (i.e. about 3 hours). The dates, times, and places for the final exam will be announced when they are scheduled.

Instructor reserves the right to change this outline or its contents if necessary to better facilitate students' needs.
