

I am currently a third year Business Administration student focusing on the Accounting Option here at the University of the Fraser Valley (UFV). I am an active member and board of director of the Business Administration Student's Association and a work study student at the University's Supported Learning Groups Center.

The University has created a strategic plan stating that we are to become the best undergraduate school in Canada, while at the same time facing a serious funding issue. As the government cuts funding, the question of where the replacement financial support will come from has to be answered. UFV can increase its funding by expanding graduate studies and increasing international enrolment. However, with enrolment already over maximum capacity, the University will have to look at how to increase its size and decrease student waitlists during a time where funding is limited.
