LEARNING OUTCOMES:

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

- use the unique tools of the performer, including vocal, physical, imaginative and felt expressiveness, to expand and enhance the expressiveness and creativity of their acting (working on the self)
- demonstrate an understanding of and apply the processes of human interaction (working with others) by focusing on the connections made with other actors, especially through the application of such techniques as situational playing and relacom (relationship/communication)
- engage the techniques of choice-making required of a performing artist, thinker and creator (applying knowledge towards the production of effective results), focusing especially on developing a fuller range of strategies and tactics to overcome character obstacles and realize a character's objectives
- investigate diverse human interactions, value systems, life experiences and/or life circumstances different from one's own and apply the findings to the realization of character, especially by discovering meaningful emotional or psychological connections to the character's situation and expressing these connections vividly in performance (connecting the work to the wider world)
- apply acting-based textual analysis to work with an historical (Shakespearean) dramatic text and performance style (connecting the work to the wider world)
- apply the actor's responsibilities in rehearsal and performance, particularly in terms of responding to feedback, energizing one's own creativity, and working effectively with other actors to generate a successful ensemble performance (connecting the work to professional demands)

Note: these outcomes follow the objectives for training actors defined by the Association for Theater in Higher Education
