Learning Outcomes:

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

- Appraise the role of justice institutions in upholding, promoting, protecting, and denying human rights and understand the main human rights issues encountered by individuals involved in criminal justice systems.
- Describe the history, concept, and content of human rights, including Canadian contributions to human rights development.
- Discuss the international legal framework for human rights protection and its relevance for the Canadian criminal justice system, especially the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, the nine-core international human rights instruments, their optional protocols, and monitoring mechanisms, and international standards and norms related to crime prevention and criminal justice.
- Describe the domestic legal framework for human rights protection and its relevance for the Canadian criminal justice system, with reference to the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, and federal and provincial human rights laws.
- Discuss concrete examples of violations of human rights, especially those pertaining to crime prevention and criminal justice, and how individuals whose rights have been violated have sought redress via domestic and international human rights bodies and mechanisms.
- Articulate how specific populations, especially Indigenous people, may be more likely to experience human rights violations necessitating enhanced protection measures or special considerations.
- Identify emerging issues and challenges in relation to justice and human rights and suggest how they may be addressed.
