Learning Outcomes:

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

- Discuss current crime and victimization trends among children and youth;
- Discuss the role of domestic legislation (e.g. the Youth Criminal Justice Act), policies (e.g. the Child, Family and Community Services Act), and international conventions (e.g. the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child) in preventing and intervening in youth offending and victimization;
- Apply a developmental perspective when discussing victimization of and offending by youth;
- Analyze critically the challenges facing at-risk populations of youth generally and in particular, special populations of youth, including Indigenous youth, children in care, youth with mental illness, lesbian-gay-bisexual-transgendered-queer youth, and female youth;
- Identify innovative interdisciplinary non-justice and justice programs and policies to prevent and intervene in a variety of at-risk youth populations.
