Learning Outcomes (These should contribute to students' ability to meet program outcomes and thus Institutional Learning Outcomes.)

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

- 1. Apply a geographical perspective to the context and processes of development and underdevelopment in the Global South and North.
- 2. Evaluate, with a critical perspective, the practice of development and its impacts on local communities, Indigenous peoples, and the environment.
- 3. Discuss and convey key development issues in rural and urban development, as well as crucial development concepts such as sustainable development, food security, gender, and community participation.
- 4. Participate in and contribute to contemporary debates and discussions.
- Formulate original ideas and analyses concerning international development, situating evidence-based arguments within academic literature.
- 6. Assess their positionality relative to others in responding to spatial inequality and development challenges.
- 7. Communicate their innovative response with project stakeholders.

Recommended Evaluation Methods and Weighting (Evaluation should align to learning outcomes.)

Quizzes/tests: 20%	Assignments: 40%	Project: 40%

Details: Assignments typically in include oral presentations and case study analysis. Each semester the instructor will organize an applied project working with a community partner or development agency. For example, Amnesty International, Food for the Hungry, MCC, or Nairobi Public Space Network sets a challenge or research questions for the class and invites stakeholders to in-person or virtually attend the final class where students present their projects.

NOTE: The following sections may vary by instructor. Please see course syllabus available from the instructor.

Texts and Resource Materials (Include online resources and Indigenous knowledge sources. Open Educational Resources (OER) should be included whenever possible. If more space is required, use the Supplemental Texts and Resource Materials form.)
