	Continuity and Change in Victorian Britain
COURSE DESCRIPTIVE TITLE

CALENDAR DESCRIPTION:

Prompted by an industrial revolution and a population boom, nineteenth century Britain embarked upon comparatively rapid and persistent change at all levels of society; in short, upon modern times. The goal of the course is to examine confrontations involving the forces for change and those for continuity over important economic, political, social and intellectual issues with a view to understanding the nature of Victorian society (1830-1906). Within this context the following themes will be explored: the meaning of the "Industrial Revolution" and its social impact, the making of a class society, constitutional reform, the role of government in a laissez-faire era, pressure group politics, the illiberal possibilities in liberal ideology, the Irish question, gender relations in Victorian society, the rise of organized labour and late nineteenth century economic decline.

PREREQUISITES: Nine credits of lower-level history. HIST 109 and 110 are strongly recommended.

Note: As of September 2008 the prerequisites will change to the following:
 Nine credits of lower-level history and four credits of 300-level history. HIST 109 and HIST 110 are recommended.

COREQUISITES: None
