Culture Change: Accommodation, Resistance, and Transformation
COURSE DESCRIPTIVE TITLE

OFFICIAL COURSE OUTLINE:

This is a cross-listed course. Please refer to ANTH 220 for the official course outline.

CALENDAR DESCRIPTION:

Using case studies from around the world and particularly from Latin America, this course examines the changes in societies and cultures as a consequence of the incorporation of local cultures and economies into a global economic system driven by capitalism. Attention is given to the peasantry (indigenous and non-indigenous), and to cultural changes due to processes such as globalization, racialization, economic and technological change, population pressures and the availability of land, the commercialization of agriculture, colonization programs, Indigenous rights movements, migration, and urbanization. We will be particularly concerned with how Indigenous peoples, the poor, and marginalized communities have accommodated, resisted, and transformed cultural, economic, and political domination.

Note: This course is offered as ANTH 220 and GDS 220. Students may take only one of these for credit.
