For Us, By Us

The National Indigenous Fire Safety Council Project's vision

The National Indigenous Fire Safety Council (NIFSC) Project is the result of a new Indigenous-initiated framework designed to support Indigenous communities in the development of their internal capacity to further community safety and resiliency. The NIFSC Project is Indigenous inspired, designed and led in collaboration with regional and national Indigenous communities, organizations and leaders.

Community Scan Project

Objective

The goal of this project is to compile a directory of entities within post-secondary institutions (e.g., Indigenous Student Centres, Indigenous Studies Departments) and Friendship Centres across Canada. The purpose of this directory is to aid in the NIFSC recruitment strategies and local community engagement on various projects and initiatives.

Methods

The directory is organized by province and type of organization and includes the name and description of the entity, along with contact information and a listing of digital addresses (website, email, social media) when applicable. The compiling team has sent an email to the contact person of each entity included in the directory with information about their inclusion in this directory and a brief description of the NIFSC Project and the purpose of the directory.

How to use this directory

There are two tables of contents listed before the directory entries. The first, an overview listing, provides the provinces and categories with the corresponding page number. The second table of contents is a more detailed version, with each individual entry listed under the higher-level headings. All headings and entries listed in both tables of contents are hyperlinked to their location in the document. A single click on any province, category or entry will take the user directly to that location in the directory.

Description:	At Olds College, our goal is to foster an environment of mutual respect and trust among all learners. Indigenous students, along with members of faculty and staff at the College have expressed a desire to have spaces on campus that reflect the rich history and culture of Indigenous people. With respect to the recommendations put forth in the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada report (2015), it is both our desire and responsibility to support indigenous learners in an honest, respectful and welcoming manner as they pursue their studies at Olds College. We strive to learn from indigenous students and their families, and to embrace opportunities to learn about indigenous knowledge and ways of knowing. In step with Indigenous learners, we work to build credible and sustainable relationships with indigenous communities.

Description:	The culture of the people is nature based and holistically intertwined to ensure adequate conditions for future generations. The world view of the people is to protect nature, and honour all things animate and inanimate. This is the first and foremost priority in the sacred duty owed to creation, passed on from generation to generation using ancient practices for countless millennia. First Nations people, the "people of the earth" view nature as an intricate web whereby everything is sacred and spiritual, each needing the other to survive and thrive. It is our hope that the evolution of man, in time and space, in particular industrial and economic development retains and fosters this world view so that all of creation will be afforded due respect in all areas of creativity.
