Our Faculty & Staff

- UFV values inclusivity and the TLC has resources to provide faculty with strategies and tips for being more inclusive in their instructional practices and to make the classroom experience more accessible to students <https://ufv.ca/buildingstrengths/>. In addition to Building Strengths, we offer the Teaching and Learning Tool Kit with resources on how to assist learning for students with disabilities. <https://www.ufv.ca/media/assets/teaching--learning-centre/Teaching-and-learning-tool-kit.pdf>

- $25,000 grant awarded to CECE and UFV International. The CICan and Universities Canada Outbound Student Mobility Pilot Program's grant in the amount of $25,000 has been awarded to the "Global Challenge project-based learning: exploring access and capacity" proposal. The project aims to build on UFV's one-time pilot project "Global Challenge: Vietnam" launched in the Winter 2020 semester by UFV International and the Centre for Experiential and Career Education in collaboration with the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Ho Chi Minh City. This project aims to satisfy multiple institutional goals: internationalization at home, increased access to outbound mobility, expanding experiential learning, graduating global citizens, increasing intercultural competencies, and cultivating civic awareness.
- Dr. Carin Bondar, Biology Adjunct Professor served as a mentor/panelist and judge at the virtual 'ComSciCon CanWest' meeting held November 13-15 <https://comscicon.com/comscicon-canwest-2020>. A group of 65 science graduate students from across Canada came together to share the results from research in their field. Earlier this month Dr. Bondar streamed her interview and live chat with journalist and science writer, Dr. Emily Willingham, author of the new book "Phallacy". View interview: <https://youtu.be/yZRF9kU1XWk>.
- Shirley Anne Hardman was re-elected to the executive of I-Lead, a provincial body of Indigenous leaders in post-secondary education.
- The 2019/20 Factbook has now been released. The Factbook provides some 60 pages of data on all types of instructional activity and student characteristics. Also included are submissions from other areas that provide information on finances, the UFV library, human resources, research, student services, and facilities. This year's Factbook has a new look and Institutional Research and Planning has updated some of the data definitions to make the document clearer and easier to use.
- This month the Faculty of Applied and Technical Studies launched Best Practices Conversations with Faculty and Staff. The purpose of these conversations is to learn from one another's successes in our current circumstances. We celebrate the many hurdles in adapting the face to face components for programs such as, Automotive Service Technician, Auto Collision Repair, Carpentry, Culinary Arts, Electrical, Plumbing and Welding. All of these trades have key elements which have to be taught face to face, finding solutions in making the modifications required while maintaining everyone's safety and allowing for our exemplary teaching to continue.
- The Teacher Education Department has updated their website and Admissions processes to affirm the TED commitment to social justice, anti-racism, decolonization and Indigenization. I encourage you to visit: <https://www.ufv.ca/teacher-education/>
